JAPANESE WILL REPLY TO U. S. NOTE; ENGLAND DENIES HELP

FOREIGN OFFICE TO STATE POSITION IN MANCHURIAN DRIVE

Japan Also Facing Internal Crisis As Cabinet Quits

TOKYO, Jan. 9.—The Japanese government today decided it was necessary to reply to the American note invoking the nine-power treaty. The foreign office immediately proceeded to draft an answer.

It had been a subject of heated discussion among the foreign policy experts whether Japan ought to acknowledge the protest directly. Some officials felt that the less notes dispatched, the better for international harmony.

The final decision, however, indicated Japan intended to state her position firmly, to deny she was violating any treaties or other agreements, and to carry on her Manchurian program as planned, except, perhaps, for a little less military display.

Concurrently with the situation arising from American Secretary of State Stimson's note, Japan was undergoing a severe governmental crisis following the attempt yesterday upon the life of Emperor Hirohito and the consequent resignation of the cabinet according to custom.

Today the emperor summoned Premier Inukai, whose Seiyukai party cabinet was unfortunate enough to be in power when the assassination attempt occurred, to form a new government. The aged leader immediately convened his resigned cabinet and asked them to take office again. All accepted.

The status of the home minister, Tokugoro Takahashi, however, remained doubtful. He is responsible for the police department and consequently for the failure to prevent the attack upon the emperor. It is the government's failure to prevent such attacks in which lies the reason for the custom of the cabinet's resigning. Many expected the home minister to resign.

In announcing that it would frame a reply to the United States the foreign office denied it had violated the administrative integrity of China, declaring it never had any. In support of this the foreign office pointed to British interests in Tibet, which is called a "protectorate," and to the Soviet influence along outer Mongolia.

It was highly probable Japan's reply would be along the lines of a statement prepared eight weeks ago by the foreign office explaining her interpretation of the nine-power treaty. The note never was published.

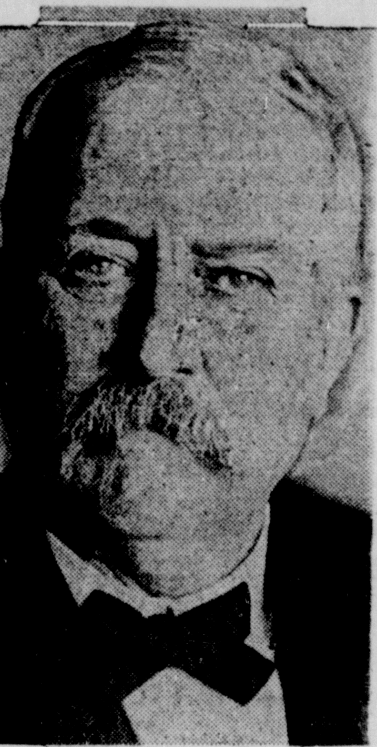

In addition to the points mentioned above as likely to be contained in a reply, the unpublished document declared Japan considered Manchuria had a de facto government when the nine-power pact was signed, and that Japan has not violated the "open door" policy in China.

The reply, if based on the foreign office statement, will assert that a continuance of the boycotts against Japan may force her to take more decisive steps.

The newspapers think Secretary of State Stimson was forced to send the note to Tokyo by American opinion. They state that the real conditions in Manchuria fail to justify the action of the United States, and they point out that it is peculiar Great Britain, France, and Italy have not communicated with Japan.

Military leaders declared the Stimson note was dispatched simply as a face-saving measure.

AIRPLANES TO HELP GOVERNMENT CHECK ALIEN SMUGGLING

Drive Concentrates On Niagara River At Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 9.—One of the largest government drives against vast alien smuggling rings was launched here today when Murray W. Garsson, special assistant secretary of labor, asked his department in Washington for five airplanes to help in rounding up the smugglers.

Branding this city "a hot-bed of alien smuggling," Garsson said 300 agencies which had connections throughout the country operated on the Niagara frontier.

Thousands of foreigners were illicitly brought into the United States every year through these smugglers, he declared.

Garsson charged the operators not only guaranteed, at a price, to bring aliens into America, but provide them with forged citizenship papers.

After these aliens were safely installed in this country, Garsson declared, the smugglers often blackmailed them receiving "hush money" on threats to expose their illegal entry.

One smuggler under arrest today, Garsson reported, admitted unlawfully transporting 500 aliens across the border in this district last year.

TRACY ANNOUNCED FOR FOURTH TERM

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 9.—Seeking a fourth term, State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy today had announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination at the May primary to succeed himself.

Election will probably establish for Tracy a record of sixteen years service in a state executive office. Tracy first became state auditor in 1921, succeeding former Governor Vic Donahey. He was reelected in 1924 and 1928.

In announcing his candidacy, Tracy said he was acting "in response to requests coming from the rank and file as well as the party leaders."

PIONEER AIRPLANE MECHANIC IS DEAD

DAYTON, O., Jan. 9.—Theodore Uermohlen, 61, pioneer airplane mechanic and long associated with Wilbur and Orville Wright was dead at his home here today.

Uermohlen, who aided the Wright brothers in perfecting their first plane, was chiefly responsible for the development of airplane propellers. During the World War, he was employed at the Dayton Wright Field as a mechanic and later spent five years at Wright Field.

MAN ELECTROCUTED

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 9.—Delbert R. Fattler, 30, was dead here today, the victim of an electrocution at a bridge construction near here yesterday. Fattler met his death when a cable, which he was holding, was pressed against a high-tension wire by a steam shovel.

ACTION OF BRITAIN BLOW TO SECRETARY OF STATE STIMSON

American Will Not Change Position On Note Regardless

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Great Britain today announced her refusal to participate with the United States in invocation of the nine-power pact with reference to Japan's occupation of Manchuria.

An official communique from the foreign office declared Japan had furnished satisfactory guarantees that the "open door" policy in Manchuria would be maintained. In view of these guarantees, it was said, Britain feels there is nothing to be gained by invocation of the treaty.

The British statement was made as a result of the note sent to Tokyo by United States Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, invoking the nine-power pact. Copies of the note were handed to all the signatories of the treaty, tantamount to an invitation for them to participate in the invocation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Formal announcement by Great Britain that she would not participate with the United States in invocation of the nine-power pact in the Sino-Japanese crisis came as a blow to Secretary of State Stimson today. Officials here had confidently expected that the British government would "second the play" made by Stimson on Thursday when he notified both Japan and China that this government would insist on maintaining the open door in China, and would not recognize any treaty or agreement arising out of Japanese military occupation of Manchuria which impaired the rights of American citizens in China or China's sovereignty over Manchuria.

Some anxiety concerning the stand which one or two other European governments would take had been apparent here, but officials had strong hopes that Britain would support the American move.

The statement by the London foreign office that Great Britain will "stand by the policy of the open door for international trade in Manchuria" and the specific mention of the Nine Power Pact was regarded as partial support. But the effect of this was largely negated by the next paragraph of the communique which stated Japan had already given assurances that the "open door" would be maintained.

The British statement was based upon Japan's assurance to the League of Nations, made on Oct. 13, which the British government apparently still accepts at its face value, despite the events which have transpired in Manchuria since that date.

Stimson's note, couched in blunt, vigorous language, made it apparent that the United States does not attach the same value to Japan's declaration of Oct. 13.

The American declaration of policy, however, will stand regardless whether any other power joins in support of its stand. Such support was desired for the cumulative effect it would have upon Japan, as the Stimson declaration, along with the numerous protests previously made by this government and the League of Nations powers against Japan's occupation of Manchuria, had been intended "for the record."

MAIL DRIVERS HELD FOR HUGE ROBBERY

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 9.—The present and former drivers of a mail contractors truck, were formally placed under arrest today in connection with the $100,000 New Year's Eve mail robbery.

Those arrested were Louis Skaff, who drove the mail truck containing the registered mail pouch from Lowell postoffice to the railroad station here on New Year's Eve, and Victor M. Agon, 36, a former truck driver. Both men live in Lowell.

The arrests came as a climax to an all night grilling of the men.

OCTOGENARIAN KILLED
NEWARK, O., Jan. 9.—James C. Taggart, 86, of Kirkersville, was dead today from injuries received last night when he was struck by a truck belonging to the Columbus Packing Co. Everett Whitlock, of Columbus, driver of the truck, was exonerated of blame.

Here is a remarkable photograph, showing the actual operation which Dr. Evan O'Neill Kane, noted Kane, Pa., surgeon, performed upon himself for intestinal hernia. He is surrounded by nurses and members of the medical profession who were amazed by the display of steady nerves which he showed throughout the hour and three-quarter ordeal. The operation was later pronounced a complete success. Dr. Kane used local anesthetic.

AMBASSADOR DAWES TO RETIRE TO "RESUME BEING BANKER"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Charles G. Dawes, who now occupies the dual role of being ambassador to Great Britain and chief of the American delegation to the Geneva conference, will retire within the next six or eight weeks to "resume being a Chicago banker."

The announcement was made by Gen. Dawes himself just before leaving for Chicago for a hurried visit preparatory to sailing with the other arms conference delegates to Geneva.

The suddenness of the announcement and the silence of the White House concerning it aroused considerable speculation today as to the reasons which prompted the picturesque banker-diplomat to resign at this time. His designation as chief of the American delegation to Geneva was made only a few weeks ago.

Dawes himself assigned no reason in the brief statement of his intentions, which, incidentally, took Washington by surprise.

In political quarters there was immediate speculation as to whether Gen. Dawes might be a contestant for the Republican nomination for the presidency against Mr. Hoover. His friends here, however, were quick to deny any such implication in his action. He is in his sixty-seventh year, and has been prominently mentioned for the presidency for years.

GERMANY FLATLY REFUSES TO PAY ANY FURTHER REPARATIONS

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Germany has finished with payment of reparations. She has decided she cannot pay now and will not pay in the future and has flatly advised her creditors of the decision.

An official communique from the German foreign office today made public the German government's decision, which was formally communicated to the British ambassador in Berlin by Chancellor Heinrich Brüning.

The German course of action was decided upon after a series of conferences between Chancellor Brüning and various political leaders, including Adolf Hitler, chief of the national socialists (Nazis) and leading proponent for repudiation of reparations.

The British communique declared Chancellor Brüning considered his decision unalterable. He informed foreign ambassadors of the decision, feeling that Germany's creditors might just as well know the German government's view immediately.

"The German declaration leaves us with a problem," an authoritative spokesman said. "But we will go ahead with the Lausanne reparations conference and see if Germany will not pay."

It was authoritatively stated that Britain expects Germany to participate in the conference "inasmuch as she has accepted the invitation and has no intimation she intends to withdraw."

The Lausanne conference, called on the recommendation of the Young plan advisory committee of the bank of international settlements, is scheduled to meet on January 16. The British foreign office announced it had telegraphed all governments proposing a week's postponement. Officials declined to explain this action, but the German repudiation of reparations and Premier Pierre Laval's cabinet difficulties were believed to be factors in the decision.

Germany's action was not unexpected, owing to persistent reports during the last twenty-four hours that Chancellor Brüning contemplated formal repudiation of reparations. But it came as something of a shock none the less, and opinion was divided as to whether the decision would wreck the Lausanne conference completely or on the other hand give some definite basis for working out permanent solution of the problem.

In the course of his conversation with the British ambassador, Dr. Brüning stated emphatically that a new moratorium on reparations or any similar temporary measure would merely "prolong the agony" and would not afford a satisfactory solution of the problem in any way.

STANDARD BEARERS INSIST UPON UNITY UPON PROHIBITION

Smith, Cox, Davis Agree Issue Calls For Decision

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Long split into snarling factions over prohibition, the Democrats seemed in a fair way today to achieve at least a semblance of harmony on this controversial issue, which has dogged them through ten weary years.

Whether the vehicle of ultimate compromise is to be the Raskob "home rule" plan—which pledges the party to nothing more than a referendum in this year's platform—or some other, remains to be seen.

Many other issues were dwelt upon by Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis, and James M. Cox in their speeches last night at the Jackson Day jubilee dinner. Some of them were applauded and some were not. But in a mixed audience of wets and dries it was prohibition and the necessity for Democrats getting together on it that never failed of vociferous applause—and from both sides. It was indicative, at least, that the spirit of compromise is in the air.

"Al" dealt with the thorny issue in his characteristically lusty fashion.

"What about prohibition?" he shouted. "The United States is spending annually $100,000,000 in a senseless, useless and fruitless attempt to enforce it. Do I say it? No. That comes from the Wickersham commission. And think of the billion dollars in revenue that we are kicking away in taxation. Next March when we all have to make up those figures for the income tax the only man exempt is the boot-licker."

Davis dwelt upon it from the standpoint of local self-government.

"The way to stop encroachments of the federal government," he said, "is to stop encroachments by the general government. Believe me there is health and healing in this course, and in it is the answer to many of our perplexities and vexations, whether it be prohibition, education, social services, or what you will."

But it remained for ex-Gov. Cox to bring the diners to their feet with an emotional appeal to the South to recognize and appreciate the viewpoint of the Northern wet. He recalled the sacrifices Northern Democrats made in supporting the South in the difficult reconstruction days.

Southern Democrats owe Northern Democrats some gratitude for that, he said, and then with great seriousness:

"May we not, now, respectfully ask that you call your political ecclesiastics back to their pulpits that truth may go to your people?"

It drew the greatest applause of the evening.

The issues upon which the Democrats are going into the next campaign against the Republicans were fairly well charted in the speeches of the three former standard bearers, but there was little clarification as to candidacies.

All the speakers, Smith, Davis, and Cox, carefully refrained from any remote allusion to presidential candidacies.

It had been reported that Smith would "clarify" his position toward 1932, but his audience listened in vain for a phrase or a word in his speech that would indicate whether he could be considered a receptive candidate.

He contended himself with a slashing and satirical attack on President Hoover's failure to carry out the Republican prosperity slogans of 1928, and he came out for a bond issue of indeterminate amount for public works as a measure of unemployment relief.

The unemployment issue he characterized as the gravest in the history of the country, and of Mr. Hoover's policy in dealing with it he said:

"The administration's dealing with unemployment is absolutely indefensible."

Davis had the hall in gales of laughter by his satire on twelve years of Republican rule. He characterized the Harding administration as "the era of dark betrayal," the Coolidge administration as "the era of smug complacency," and the Hoover administration as "the era of wild dismay."

TOKYO, Jan. 9.—Five persons were killed and at least twelve injured in an agrarian clash today in the village of Akutsumura, in Tochigi prefecture.

THEY WIN MATCH

CULBERTSON BEATS LENZ AS MARATHON BRIDGE MATCH ENDS

Retains Lead To Last; Loser Denies His System At Fault

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The 150 rubber contract bridge battle between Ely Culbertson and Sidney Lenz was ended today, but their long standing personal feud remains very much in existence.

The marathon tournament, which may never have a parallel as long as cards are played, passed into history shortly before midnight last night when Culbertson played out the last card of a little slam in diamonds and rose from the table, victor of a total margin of 8,380 points over his arch-enemy.

Teamed for the final session with his wife, Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, the originator of the approach-forcing system squeezed out a gain of 210 points during the six rubbers played, of which each team won three.

Realizing the hopelessness of attempting to achieve anything like the 20,000 points lead he held before Lenz and Commander Windfield Liggett began to make their tremendous inroads, Culbertson sat back and took it easy. To say he was content to win would be an understatement. He was overjoyed, convinced that the victory had shown beyond all doubt the superiority of his system over the 1-2-3 method of Sidney Lenz.

Any lingering hope that five weeks of continual association at a bridge table might have served to dissipate the open unfriendliness between Lenz and Culbertson was dissipated when the players rose at the conclusion of the last hand.

Lenz gripped Mrs. Culbertson by the hand, congratulated her on her playing and her victory, and then abruptly turned his back as Culbertson came over to join in the congratulations.

Culbertson made no attempt to press the point. Each took his place on opposite sides of the room, allowed himself to be surrounded by newspapermen and did nothing to thaw the icy barrier that stood between them.

"I am making no alibi," Lenz said. "I lost and that's all there is to it."

"But I must say that in no sense of word can the tournament be construed as a test of systems. Cards speak for themselves. In twenty sessions of play, only two of Culbertson's demand bids resulted in successful contracts."

"The result of the match was due solely to the playing and distribution of the cards. When even-ly-matched players oppose one another, systems do not count."

Culbertson, always cocksure, jaunty and self-possessed was unwilling to permit Lenz thus to dim the glory of his victory.

"It need hardly be said that the result shows a triumph for the approach-forcing system," he said. "It is impossible to interpret it any other way. The verdict was clear and unequivocal. Mr. Lenz played his system and I played mine. I won. What else is there to say?"

So far as a comparison of systems is concerned, the only peg on which a computation can be hung is the number of high cards held according to the counting systems of the two methods.

During the entire match, Culbertson held 3,649 1/2 "honor tricks" according to his system of counting against 3,648 for Lenz. The total by the "official system" no trump count was 18,091 for Culbertson and 17,893 for Lenz.

MILITIA GUARDING HONOLULU STREETS FOLLOWING MURDER

Three Arrested For Death Of Native Freed Of Attack

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 9.—Militiamen with drawn guns paced the streets of Honolulu today as authorities strove to curtail an outbreak of racial animosity that threatened to envelop the Hawaiian Islands.

Against this ominous background, details of the kidnapping and killing of Joseph Kahahawai, native accused of attacking the wife of an American naval officer, were laid bare by police.

Three persons were charged with the murder and placed in the custody of a high naval officer. They were Mrs. Granville Fortescue, society matron of New York and Washington, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., her son-in-law whose wife was attacked, and E. J. Lord, an enlisted man of the navy.

Evidence unearthed today led police to think that Kahahawai, who recently stood trial with four others accused of attacking Mrs. Massie, had been shot to death while submerged in a bath tub in the Fortescue home.

Kahahawai was kidnapped from the steps of the court house. Several hours later a suspicious automobile was pursued and halted. In it was found the Hawaiian's body. He had been shot through the heart, his clothes stripped from him, and a sheet wrapped around him.

Mrs. Fortescue was driving the car, police charged, and in it were Lieut. Massie and Lord.

Feeling has been at fever pitch here during the past month. The killing of Kahahawai was the second sensational aftermath of the mistrial of the five natives accused of attacking Mrs. Massie. Previously, Horace Ida, one of the Japanese defendants in the trial, was kidnapped and seriously beaten.

A series of attack cases involving white women and natives has intensified the situation.

Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie, and Lord will be given a hearing on the murder complaint late today. Naval authorities requested permission to handle the case in their own way, but James Gilliland, city and county attorney, has insisted that the matter be left in civilian hands.

The prisoners were in custody of Capt. Ward K. Workman, commander of the Pearl Harbor naval submarine base.

Police set about to reconstruct the story of the kidnapping and killing.

A neighbor of Massie's said a shot was heard in the Massie home. Albert S. Jones, an enlisted man, was seen guarding the home with a gun in his hand. He was taken into custody but no charge was placed against him.

Searched at the police station, bullets similar to those used to kill Kahahawai were found on Jones. A bogus summons, embellished with a large gold seal, was also discovered, reading:

"The territorial police, Major Ross Commanding; summons to appear—Kahahawai, Joe."

Police believed this was shown to the Hawaiian to induce him to accompany his kidnappers.

At the Fortescue home, six blocks from the Massie's, bloody towels were found and the floor was spattered with blood. It was here, the police believed that Kahahawai was placed in the bathtub and shot to death.

When the car driven by Mrs. Fortescue was overtaken near Koko Head, Lieut. Massie spoke a solemn "Hello chief" to Detective Claude Benton.

"It looks pretty bad," Benton replied, and Massie nodded his head, glancing ruefully towards the body of Kahahawai.

When Mrs. Fortescue was arrested the color drained from her face, but later she became more nonchalant.

Through the strictest of police vigilance open disorder has been prevented. Every precaution has been taken at the army and navy posts, and the town itself has been turned into an armed camp.

At the Oahu prison, from which a convict escaped and attacked a white woman recently, the control was taken from Warden John C. Long and placed in the hands of Col. Wilhelm Anderson by Governor Lawrence Judd.

Louis Kaliahu, the native who escaped from Oahu and was captured, was reported to have been hanged by irate prisoners, but this was branded as false by Col. Anderson.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Major Granville Fortescue, explorer and author, was in a state of collapse today, induced when he learned his wife was arrested on a murder charge in Honolulu.

He was convalescing after an attack of pneumonia when the news was conveyed to him.

Fortescue who fought in the Spanish-American war, was married in Washington in 1910. He was decorated several times for

AS DOCTOR OPERATES ON SELF

Here is a remarkable photograph, showing the actual operation which Dr. Evan O'Neill Kane, Pa., surgeon, performed upon himself for intestinal hernia. He is surrounded by nurses and members of the medical profession who were amazed by the display of steady nerves which he showed throughout the hour and three-quarter ordeal. The operation was later pronounced a complete success. Dr. Kane used local anesthetic.

AMBASSADOR DAWES TO RETIRE TO "RESUME BEING BANKER"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Charles G. Dawes, who now occupies the dual role of being ambassador to Great Britain and chief of the American delegation to the Geneva arms conference, will retire within the next six or eight weeks to "resume being a Chicago banker."

The announcement was made by Gen. Dawes himself just before leaving for Chicago for a hurried visit preparatory to sailing with the other arms conference delegates for Geneva.

The suddenness of the announcement and the silence of the White House concerning it aroused considerable speculation today as to the reasons which prompted the picturesque banker-diplomat to resign at this time. His designation as chief of the American delegation to Geneva was made only a few weeks ago.

Dawes himself assigned no reason in the brief statement of his intentions, which, incidentally, took Washington by surprise.

In political quarters there was immediate speculation as to whether Gen. Dawes might be a contestant for the presidency against Mr. Hoover. His friends here, however, were quick to deny any such implication in his action. He is in his sixty-seventh year, and has been prominently mentioned for the presidency for years.

GERMANY FLATLY REFUSES TO PAY ANY FURTHER REPARATIONS

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Germany has finished with payment of reparations.

She has decided she cannot pay now and will not pay in the future and has flatly advised her creditors of the decision.

An official communique from the British foreign office today made public the German government's decision, which was formally communicated to other British ambassadors in Berlin by Chancellor Heinrich Brüning.

The German course of action was decided upon after a series of conferences between Chancellor Brüning and various political leaders, including Adolf Hitler, chairman of the national socialist (Fascist) and leading proponent for repudiation of reparations.

The British communique declared Chancellor Brüning considered his decision unalterable. He informed foreign ambassadors of the decision, feeling that Germany's creditors might just as well know the German government's view immediately.

The German declaration leaves us with a problem, an authoritative spokesman said. "But we will go ahead with the Lausanne reparations conference and see if Germany will not pay."

It was authoritatively stated that Britain expects Germany to participate in the conference "inasmuch as she has accepted the invitation and has no intention she intends to withdraw."

The Lausanne conference, called on the recommendation of the Young plan advisory committee of the bank of international settlements, is scheduled to meet on January 18. The British foreign office announced it had telegraphed all governments proposing a week's postponement. Officials declined to explain this action, but the German repudiation of reparations and Premier Pierre Laval's cabinet difficulties were believed to be factors in the decision.

Germany's action was not unexpected, owing to persistent reports during the last twenty-four hours that Chancellor Brüning contemplated formal repudiation of reparations. But it came as something of a shock none the less, and opinion was divided as to whether the decision would wreck the Lausanne conference completely or on the other hand give some definite basis for working out permanent solution of the problem.

In the course of his conversation with the British ambassador, Dr. Brüning stated emphatically that a new moratorium on reparations would merely "prolong the agony" and would not afford a satisfactory solution of the problem in any way.

Funeral services will be held at the home Tuesday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock followed by services at the Stroup cemetery, near Lynchburg, at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be made in that cemetery.

STANDARD BEARERS INSIST UPON UNITY UPON PROHIBITION

Smith, Cox, Davis Agree Issue Calls For Decision

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Long split into snarling factions over prohibition, the Democrats seemed in a fair way today to achieve at least a semblance of harmony on this controversial issue, which has dogged them through ten weary years.

Whether the vehicle of ultimate compromise is to be the Raskob "home rule" plan—which pledges the party to nothing more than a referendum in this year's platform—or some other, remains to be seen.

Many other issues were dwelt upon by Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis, and James M. Cox in their speeches last night at the Jackson Day jubilee dinner. Some of them were applauded and some were not. But in a mixed audience of Democrats and non-Democrats, the Democrats seemed to have won the day.

What about prohibition? he asked. "The United States is spending annually $100,000,000 in a senseless, useless and fruitless attempt to enforce it. Do I say it? No. That comes from the Wickersham commission. And think of the billion dollars in revenue that we are kicking away in taxation. Next March when we all have to make up those figures for the income tax the only man exempt is the boot-legal."

But it dwelt upon it from the standpoint of local self-government. "The way to stop encroachments of the federal government," he said, "is to stop encroachments by the general government. Believe me there is health and healing in this course, and in it is the answer to many of our perplexities and vexations, whether it be prohibition, education, social services, or what you will."

It remained for ex-Gov. Cox to bring the dinner to its feet with an emotional appeal to the South to recognize and appreciate the viewpoint of the Northern wets. He recalled the sacrifices Northern Democrats made in supporting the South in the difficult reconstruction days. Southern Democrats owe Northern Democrats some gratitude for that, he said, and then with great seriousness:

"May we not, however, politically recede back to their pulpits that truth may go to your people? It drew the greatest applause of the evening."

The issues upon which the Democrats are going into the next campaign against the Republicans were fairly well charted in the speeches of the three former standard bearers, but there was little clarification as to candidates.

All the speakers, Smith, Davis, and Cox, carefully refrained from any remarks allusion to presidential candidates.

It had been reported that Smith would "clarify" his position toward 1932, but his audience listened in vain for a phrase or a word in his speech that would indicate whether he could be considered the evening.

He contented himself with a slashing and satirical attack on President Hoover's failure to carry out the Republican prosperity slogans of 1928, and he came out for a bond issue of indeterminate amount for public works as a measure of unemployment relief.

The unemployment issue he characterized as the gravest in the history of the country, and of Mr. Hoover's policy in dealing with it he said:

"The administration's dealing with unemployment is absolutely indefensible."

Davis had the hall in gales of laughter by his satire on twelve years of Republican rule. He characterized the Harding administration as "the era of dark betrayal," the Coolidge administration as "the era of smug complacency," and the Hoover administration as "the era of wild dismay."

"I need hardly be said that the result shows a triumph for the approach-forcing system," he said. "It is impossible to interpret it any other way. The verdict was clear and unequivocal. Mr. Lenz played his system and I played mine. I won. What else is there to say?"

So far as a comparison of systems is concerned, the only peg on which a computation can be hung is the number of high cards held according to the counting systems of the two methods.

During the entire match, Culbertson held 3,649 "honor tricks" according to his system of counting against 3,648 for Lenz. The total by the "official system" no trump count was 18,091 for Culbertson and 17,898 for Lenz.

CULBERTSON BEATS LENZ AS MARATHON BRIDGE MATCH ENDS

Retains Lead To Last; Loser Denies His System At Fault

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The 150 rubber contract bridge battle between Ely Culbertson and Sidney Lenz was ended today, but their long standing personal feud remains very much in existence.

The marathon tournament, which may never have a parallel as long as cards are played, passed into history shortly before midnight last night when Culbertson played out the last card of a little slam in diamonds and rose from the table, victor of a total margin of 8,380 points over his arch-enemy.

Teamed for the final session with his wife, Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, the originator of the approach-forcing system squeezed out a gain of 210 points during the six rubbers played, of which each team won three.

Realizing the hopelessness of attempting to achieve anything like the 20,000 points lead he held before Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett began to make their tremendous inroads, Culbertson sat back and took it easy. To say he was content to win would be an understatement. He was overjoyed, convinced that the victory had shown beyond all doubt the superiority of his system over the 1-2-3 method of Sidney Lenz.

Any lingering hope that five weeks of continual association at a bridge table might have served to dissipate the open unfriendliness between Lenz and Culbertson was dissipated when the players rose at the conclusion of the last rubber.

Lenz gripped Mrs. Culbertson by the hand, congratulated her on her playing and her victory, and then abruptly turned his back as Culbertson came over to join in the congratulations.

Culbertson made no attempt to press the point. Each took his place on opposite sides of the room, allowed himself to be surrounded by newspapermen and did nothing to thaw the icy barrier that stood between them.

"I am making no alibi," Lenz said. "I lost and that's all there is to it."

"But I must say that in no sense of word can the tournament be construed as a test of systems. Cards speak for themselves. In twenty sessions of play, only two of Culbertson's demand bids resulted in successful contracts."

"The result of the match was due solely to the playing and distribution of the cards. When even-oddly matched players oppose one another, systems do not count."

Culbertson, always cocksure, jaunty and self-possessed was unwilling to permit Lenz thus to dim the glory of his victory.

"It need hardly be said that the result shows a triumph for the approach-forcing system," he said. "It is impossible to interpret it any other way. The verdict was clear and unequivocal. Mr. Lenz played his system and I played mine. I won. What else is there to say?"

So far as a comparison of systems is concerned, the only peg on which a computation can be hung is the number of high cards held according to the counting systems of the two methods.

MILITIA GUARDING HONOLULU STREETS FOLLOWING MURDER

Three Arrested For Death Of Native Freed Of Attack

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 9.—Militiamen with drawn guns paced the streets of Honolulu today as authorities strove to curtail an outbreak of racial animosity that threatened to envelop the Hawaiian Islands.

Against this ominous background, details of the kidnapping and killing of Joseph Kahahawai, native accused of attacking the wife of an American naval officer, were laid bare by police.

Three persons were charged with the murder and placed in the custody of a high naval officer. They were Mrs. Granville Fortescue, society matron of New York and Washington, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., her son-in-law whose wife was attacked, and E. J. Lord, an enlisted man of the navy.

Evidence unearthed today led police to think that Kahahawai, who recently stood trial with four others accused of attacking Mrs. Massie, had been shot to death while submerged in a bath tub in the Fortescue home.

Kahahawai was kidnapped from the steps of the court house. Several hours later a suspicious automobile was pursued and halted. In it was found the Hawaiian's body. He had been shot through the heart, his clothes stripped from him, and a sheet wrapped around him.

Mrs. Fortescue was driving the car, police charged, and in it were Lieut. Massie and Lord.

Feeling has been at fever pitch here during the past month. The killing of Kahahawai was the second sensational aftermath of the mistrial of the five natives accused of attacking Mrs. Massie. Previously, Horace Ida, one of the Japanese defendants in the trial, was kidnapped and seriously beaten.

A series of attack cases involving white women and natives has intensified the situation.

Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie, and Lord will be given a hearing on the murder complaint late today. Naval authorities requested permission to handle the case in their own way, but James Gilliland, city and county attorney, has insisted that the matter be left in civilian hands.

The prisoners were in custody of Capt. Ward K. Workman, commander of the Pearl Harbor naval submarine base.

Police set about to reconstruct the story of the kidnapping and killing.

A neighbor of Massie's home, Albert S. Jones, an enlisted man, was seen guarding the home with a gun in his hand. He was taken into custody but no charge was placed against him.

At the Fortescue home, six blocks from the Massie's, bloody towels were found and the floor was spattered with blood. It was here that police believed that Kahahawai was placed in the bathtub and shot to death.

When the car driven by Mrs. Fortescue was overtaken near Koko Head, Lieut. Massie spoke a solemn "Hello chief" to Detective Claude Benton.

"It looks pretty bad," Benton replied, and Massie added his head, glancing ruefully towards the body of Kahahawai.

When Mrs. Fortescue was arrested the color drained from her face, but later she became more nonchalant.

Through the strictest of police vigilance open disorder has been prevented. Every precaution has been taken at the army and navy posts, and the town itself has been turned into an armed camp.

At the Oahu prison, from which a convict escaped and attacked a white woman recently, the control was taken from Warden John C. Long and placed in the hands of Col. Wilhelm Anderson by Governor Lawrence Judd.

Louis Kaliape, the native who escaped from Oahu and was recaptured, was reported to have been hanged by false prisoners, but this was branded as false by Col. Anderson.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Major Granville Fortescue, explorer and author, was in a state of collapse today, induced when he learned his wife was arrested on a murder charge.

He was convalescing after an attack of pneumonia when the news was conveyed to him.

Fortescue who fought in the Spanish-American war, was married in Washington in 1910. He was decorated several times for

When God began to create the heavens and the earth, the earth was a desolate waste, with darkness covering the abyss and a tempestuous wind raging over the surface of the waters. Then God said,

"Let there be light!"

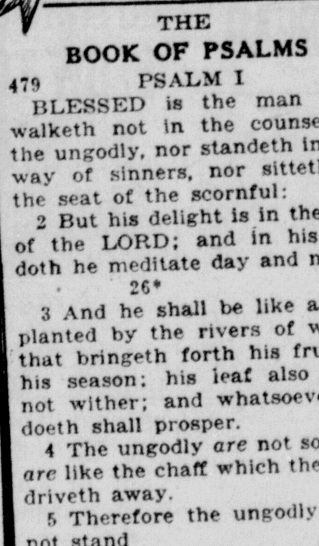

And there was light; and God saw that the light was good. God then separated the light from the darkness. God called the light day, and the darkness night. Evening came, and morning, the first day.

Then God said, "Let there be a firmament in the middle of the waters to divide the waters in two!"

And so it was. God made the firmament, dividing the waters that were below the firmament from those that were above it; and God called the firmament sky. Evening came, and morning, the second day.

SENTENCE YOUTH TO LONG REFORMATORY TERM FOR BURGLARY

Sentence of from fifteen to thirty years in the Mansfield state reformatory was imposed by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Saturday morning upon John Loyd Ayres, 19, of R. R. No. 12 Seattle, Wash., who pleaded guilty to grand larceny.

Charles Mallory, 19, of Evanston, suburb of Cincinnati, pleaded guilty to a similar charge but sentence was deferred by the court.

The two youths were indicted by the grand jury for robbing the home of Harry D. Shaffer, 22 W. Market St., last October 25 of personal property valued at $48.76, while the house was unoccupied. The robbery was not discovered until the pair was arrested in Cincinnati two days later on suspicion and confessed to the burglary in this city.

The heavy reformatory sentence meted out to Ayres was attributed to the fact he had a bad criminal record. He admitted having served eighteen months in the Montana state penitentiary for auto theft, and to have brushed with the law on numerous other occasions.

H. McKelly, Dayton, who had pleaded guilty to converting to his own use an auto valued at $225, owned by the Lang Chevrolet Co., last July 15, was given a suspended sentence of one to ten years in Ohio penitentiary, and then jailed in the custody of Sheriff John Baughn.

Indicted by the grand jury for burglary and larceny, Theodore Stevens, 24, colored, and Harry Vaughn, 29, colored, were permitted to plead guilty to petit larceny in connection with the theft of four teen chickens from George Lee, colored 14 E. Third St., Dec. 8.

Vaughn was fined $20 and costs and sentenced to twenty days in jail. Stevens was fined $10 and costs and the fine was ordered suspended upon payment of the costs and upon making restitution to Lee for the value of the chickens.

DEPRESSION DUE TO SELFISHNESS SAYS REV. BRILL FRIDAY

The Rev. S. L. Brill, pastor of the United Brethren Church, spoke on "Prayer and the Depression" at the Week of Prayer services at the First Reformed Church Friday evening. Using as his text, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto Me," the speaker opened his remarks with the caption, "It has become a game to blame everything upon the depression."

"Then we begin to blame God for the depression while if God creates the harvest and God directs the weather—we in this section of the world have no cause of complaint against God. The most uncomfortable parts of the depression come from relationships of man to man. The main cause of the depression is selfishness which manifests itself in a variety of ways. The World War was an outgrowth of selfishness, the spirit of trying to get something for nothing is selfishness and prompts all the gambling and speculation in stocks and bonds—industry is partly to blame for depression. If selfishness is the cause of the depression as it appears in so many different ways—the only cure for it all is according to God, 'Love'. There is no other way to get right with God over the sin of selfishness but prayer."

The prayers of the service were directed toward the poor and needy and also for the leadership of God.

The closing service of the series will be held Sunday evening when Dr. H. B. McElreath of the Second U. P. Church, will speak. The service will be held at the First Reformed Church, starting at 7:30 p. m.

BOY WHO ADMITTED BURNING EIGHT WAS HELD IN JAIL HERE

Registered under the name of "Albert Raymond, 19," one of two youthful inmates of the Lancaster, O. Industrial School, who repudiated sensational confessions they had fired the cabin home of James White last April 7 near Gallipolis, O., causing the death of White and seven of his children, was confined in the Greene County Jail on this date.

The boy, Albert Ramer, 15, local records show, was picked up on suspicion by Captain Fred Jones, of the Xenia police department, at 8:30 a. m. April 6 and turned over to the sheriff's office. The youth was then held in jail until April 9, when he was taken back to the Lancaster Industrial School, from where he had escaped in August, 1930.

A desire to get away from the restraints of confinement in the state institution was said to have prompted Ramer and Ellsworth Moyer, 17, of Bucyrus, to startle the entire state recently with a sensational story of their guilt of the murder of White and all but one of his children.

This confession was finally repudiated under questioning by the Gallipolis prosecuting attorney and sheriff, and Ramer admitted he was confined in the Greene County jail on the date of the fire.

Prosecutor Miller telephoned police headquarters here to check the boy's alibi and an examination of local records disclosed the apparent truth of the youth's statement.

much interest has been aroused over the state by Dayton business men in their action to protect their financial institutions and business houses against the spread of malicious rumors, through the organization, this week, of "The Dayton Vigilance Association," and offers of a reward for conviction of those who circulate harmful rumors.

No one ever knows who starts a rumor, but most people are careless about repeating it, little realizing the serious damage they do.

nor the heavy penalty they may incur if the state law is invoked, which provides as much as two years penitentiary sentence and a heavy fine.

The Dayton situation was further aggravated this week through a totally unfounded rumor stating that one of the large retail establishments was about to go on the rocks. This was met promptly and courageously by this large store. They nailed the rumor with full page ads in the Dayton papers, branding it as false.

Now, with the formation of an organization by a score of Dayton's most prominent business and financial leaders, representing the Retail Merchants' Association and the Dayton Clearing House, to combat the evil practice, it is believed the circulation of false reports will cease.

Rigid enforcement of the state law relating to the circulation of rumors against financial houses is to be ordered and a reward of $1,000 has been posted for the arrest and conviction of any person guilty of malicious spreading of rumors.

Prosecuting Attorney Calvin Crawford, meeting with the group of business men, said he would attempt to fine and send to the penitentiary for the maximum two-year term, persons who help circulate such rumors.

EVANGELIST WILL SPEAK ON "ELEVEN KINDS OF BAPTISTS"

"Eleven Kinds of Baptists" will be the topic of the sermon by the Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, "radio preacher of the South," at the First Baptist Church Sunday morning, it is announced. In giving out this topic for the service the Rev. Mr. Stewart invited all members who were not "thin-skinned" to attend but he added "if you are afraid and have sensitive feelings you had better stay home."

"Passes at the Window" will be the theme of his sermon Sunday evening at 7:15 o'clock. There will be gospel singing from the new books, "Revival Gems" and the Rev. Mr. Stewart will sing a solo.

Friday evening the Rev. Mr. Stewart spoke to a large audience on the topic, "Is Sin a Skin Disease?" He said in part, "The difference between doctors is mainly in their ability to diagnose correctly. We know this to be true in the physical realm but it is just as true in the moral realm. One of the greatest differences between the religion of Jesus Christ and other religions is in the diagnosis that is made in what is wrong with mankind."

The Christian religion frankly diagnoses this as the worst disease of humanity and proposes the most serious cure that can be offered, namely, that the God who made the universe and has all power in His hand has gone to the last extreme in his power, through the life, death and resurrection of Christ, to indicate the possibility of a cure, and put the whole weight of his appeal back of it to urge upon humanity the acceptance of that cure and the advantage of it."

Six confessions of Christ were reported in response to the invitation given by the evangelist at the close of the service. The special meetings will continue throughout next week with services every evening except Monday. It is planned that the entire congregation will visit the revival at Trinity M. E. Church Monday evening.

SENTENCE YOUTH TO LONG REFORMATORY TERM FOR BURGLARY

Sentence of from fifteen to thirty years in the Mansfield state reformatory was imposed by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Saturday morning upon John Lloyd Ayres, 19, of R. R. No. 12, Seattle, Wash., who pleaded guilty to grand larceny.

Charles Mallory, 19, of Evanston, suburb of Cincinnati, pleaded guilty to a similar charge but sentence was deferred by the court for four months.

The two youths were indicted by the grand jury for robbing the home of Harry D. Shaffer, 22 W. Market St., last October 25 of personal property valued at $75.00, while the house was unoccupied. The robbery was not discovered until the pair was arrested in Cincinnati two days later on suspicion and confessed to the burglary in this city.

The heavy reformatory sentence meted out to Ayres was attributed to the fact he had a bad criminal record. He admitted having served eighteen months in the Montana state penitentiary for auto theft, and to have brushed with the law on numerous other occasions.

H. McKelley, Dayton, who had pleaded guilty to converting to his own use an auto valued at $225, owned by the Lane Chevrolet Co., last July 15, was given a suspended sentence of one to ten years in Ohio penitentiary, and then paroled in the custody of Sheriff John Baughn.

Indicted by the grand jury for burglary and larceny, Theodore Stevens, 24, colored, and Harry Vaughn, 29, colored, were permitted to plead guilty to petit larceny in connection with the theft of four chickens from George Lee, colored 814 E. Third St., Dec. 8.

Vaughn was fined $20 and costs and sentenced to twenty days in jail. Stevens was fined $10 and costs and the fine was ordered suspended upon payment of the costs and upon making restitution to Lee for the value of the chickens.

DEPRESSION DUE TO SELFISHNESS SAYS REV. BRILL FRIDAY

The Rev. S. L. Brill, pastor of the United Brethren Church, spoke on "Prayer and the Depression" at the Week of Prayer services at the First Reformed Church Friday evening. Using as his text, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto Me," the speaker opened his remarks with the caption, "It has become a game to blame everything upon the depression."

"Then we begin to blame God for the depression while if God creates the harvest and God diffuses the weather—we in this section of the world have no cause of complaint against God. The most uncomfortable parts of the depression come from relationships of man to man. The main cause of the depression is selfishness which manifests itself in a variety of ways. The World War was an outgrowth of selfishness, the spirit of trying to get something for nothing is selfishness and prompts all the gambling and speculation in stocks and bonds—industry is partly to blame for depression. If selfishness is the cause of the depression as it appears in so many different ways—the only cure for it all is according to God, 'Love.' There is no other way to get right with God over the sin of selfishness but prayer."

The prayers of the service were directed toward the poor and needy and also for the leadership of God.

The closing service of the series will be held Sunday evening when Dr. H. B. McElree of the Second U. P. Church, will speak. The service will be held at the First Reformed Church, starting at 7:30 p. m.

BOY WHO ADMITTED BURNING EIGHT WAS HELD IN JAIL HERE

Registered under the name of "Albert Raymond, 19," one of two youthful inmates of the Lancaster, O. Industrial School, who repudiated sensational confessions they had fired the cabin home of James White last April 7 near Gallipolis, O., causing the death of White and seven of his children, was confined in the Greene County Jail on this date.

The boy, Albert Ramer, 15, local records show, was picked up on suspicion by Captain Fred Jones, of the Xenia police department, at 8:30 a. m. April 8 and turned over to the sheriff's office. The youth was then held in jail until April 9, when he was taken back to the Lancaster Industrial School, from where he had escaped in August, 1930.

A desire to get away from the restraints of confinement in the state institution was said to have prompted Ramer and Ellsworth Moyer, 17, of Bucyrus, to startle the entire state recently with a sensational story of their guilt of the murder of White and all but one of his children.

This confession was finally repudiated under questioning by the Gallipolis prosecuting attorney and sheriff, and Ramer admitted he was confined in the Greene County jail on the date of the fire.

Prosecutor Miller telephoned police headquarters here to check the boy's alibi and an examination of local records disclosed the apparent truth of the youth's statement.

WILL MARRY ALL FREE FRANKLIN, Pa.—Mayor Harry

Ferringer, asking city council for a new seal, informed the council he was preparing to marry all couples free of charge during the depression. "Anyone who has the courage to marry now deserves to have the ceremony performed without being obligated to pay the fee," he said. Council voted him the seal.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Lo, this only have I found that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.—Ecclesiastes, vii, 29.

DOING GOOD

When the National Collegiate Athletic Association was formed some twenty-five years ago, many persons in close touch with intercollegiate sports were inclined to look upon the new organization with much skepticism. In fact, those in authority at some of the largest of the universities showed little inclination to take part in its proceedings, much less join it. That it would become such a power for improvement in the collegiate athletic world may have been foreseen by its founders; but the rank and file were more inclined to look upon it as just another organization.

Its latest annual meeting showed just what can be accomplished in the way of improving intercollegiate athletics when the men who are really interested in the subject get together as members of such an organization. There have been many phases of college sports open to criticism, football probably being the most prominent of these; but no one who took part in the N. C. A. A. meeting in New York last week could but realize that great gains toward a truer amateurism in college sports had been made during the last year.

It seems to be dawning upon some of those persons who have contested themselves with finding fault with college sports that there is, after all, much good in them, and that the real way to improve the situation is to lend their influence toward better ethical practices and more open and frank discussion of the various phases which enter into them. Even football received considerable sympathetic discussion and the promise that the rules officials would do everything possible, not only to make it safer for those who play it, but also to try to bring it back to a college sport with less stress on the spectacular and on the desire for victory.

This year's convention undoubtedly was the best that the N. C. A. A. has yet held. If the organization continues to carry on along the same lines as in the past, there can be little doubt as to the future of athletics at America's big educational institutions.

Obstinacy is the determination, an exchange says, to die of starvation rather than eat spinach. Which is even less complimentary to the human species than to that much maligned vegetable.

The amount of oratory expended on the subject of peace in a normally oratorical year, if it sunk into the human mind, would be sufficient to sink all the fleets afloat.

So many people are so busy trying to foresee what 1932 will bring them that they are in danger of its passing them by without their seeing it.

COLOR VIBRATIONS

Hollywood has gone color conscious, it is reported. A lady color expert has broken into the news by rediscovering something that has been common knowledge since the day when first the juice from a colored berry was used to stain a piece of skin negligee in the limited wardrobe of a progressive cave woman; namely, that each person has a certain color which makes him feel good and look at his best.

The lady expert, of course, explains it by the theory of vibrations. Red, which sends out short vibrations with great frequency, is a gay color, as everyone knows. Green, restful to the eyes, is for people naturally so vibrant that they don't need the assistance of a color. Black, which really isn't a color at all but the absence of color, is supposed to give poise, perhaps because it doesn't send out any disturbing vibrations. White, which is the combination of all colors, is properly described as "radiant." It also gives poise, perhaps because its component colors neutralize one another.

It's all very interesting and there is no doubt that Hollywood's lady color expert has a real place as an adviser. It might be a good idea for her to establish branch offices, for despite the fact that she is putting an old idea in a new dress there are a good many who never have found out about it. Perhaps while she has a few hundred thousand people color conscious it wouldn't be too much to ask her to get up a little report on the effect that a blue suit exerts on a business man. — Lorain Times-Herald.

Third Party Source Of Worry

DR. A. LAWRENCE LOWELL

President of Harvard University (Abbott Lawrence Lowell was born in Boston, Mass., Dec. 13, 1856. He is a graduate of Harvard university, and has received numerous honorary degrees. He practiced law in Boston from 1880 to 1897, and in 1900 became professor of science of government at Harvard. In May, 1909, Lowell became president of Harvard university. Some of his publications are "Transfer of Stock in Corporations," "Essays on Government," "Governments and Parties in Continental Europe," "Colonial Civil Service," "The Government of England," "Public Opinion and Popular Government" and "Public Opinion in War and Peace.")

Our college students as a whole appear more mature than a generation ago, not only in scholarship, but also in their outside interests and in the sense of proportionate values which is the flower of maturity. And this in spite of—perhaps to some extent because of—the extent that they enter a year younger than they did in the early '90s.

Maturity is by no means wholly a matter of years. It depends much more on environment, and above all on responsibility. A youth who enters college at 19 and is treated like a schoolboy matures less rapidly than one who enters at 17 and is treated like a man. To enter at the appropriate age and be expected to be rather above than below his maturity is the best way to develop manly character.

Although undergraduates have less freedom in the choice of electives and are more rigidly held to a higher standard of work, they are induced to feel more responsibility than in the past for their own education and for the well-being of the college to which they have the honor to belong.

AFTER

Oh, the little that remain! Scent of mint out in the lane; Flare of window, sound of bees; These, but these.

Three times sitting down to bed; One time climbing up to bed; Table-setting over and over; Drying herbs for winter's store; This thing; that thing—nothing more.

But just now out in the lane, Oh, the scent of mint was plain! —Lizette W. Reese (1856-?)

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—There are blue days for the vendors of what old-fashioned, 1930-31 souls called whoopee. The caverns where merry-making is unrestrained are as forlorn as the offices of Florida realtors. Two of the speaks within a block of my home report all-time weekly lows in receipts. Either the consciences of celebrants are extraordinarily acute this year or resolutions, for once, are holding throughout the days following New Year's.

Even the caravans seeking pick-me-ups—the "headache trade"—are dwindled. This is explained by one sanguine proprietor as a result of the unprecedentedly excellent quality of liquor dispensed. Others are amazed by what can be no less than an increased caution and uprightness in an already strait-laced town.

On the other hand, department and gift stores, I am informed, have been surprised by the volume of post-holiday trade. Some groups of friends, I hear, arranged to buy their Christmas presents when the clearance sales set in, with benefit to all concerned. Thus many a family is now enjoying its own private Christmas, not caring a hoot for what the calendars cry.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Whenever a Mr. Wodehouse mentions the lamentable ease with which he is able to separate the poor old movie producers from their cash in return for inferior scenarios, and whenever a Mr. Hecht takes note of the publicity attendant upon Mr. Wodehouse's comment and parrots it, I am moved to a brief arithmetical check upon the recent Hollywood efforts with which such gentlemen happened to have been associated. It developed that the last two Hecht pieces turned out as badly for the box office as for art, and the last Wodehouse film opus will be lucky if it grosses expenses.

What are such sentiments called in your section? There used to be a phrase—something like over-fermented grapes, I believe. Or "beating the boss to the draw."

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

Every time I attend an opening and gaze at the banks of celebrities, I am overcome with morbid speculation. What would happen if an earthquake shook the house down and blotted out so big a slice of Mazda and front-page fame? Would the headlines and headlines blaze with a new firmament of idols tomorrow evening?

The other night, at a gaudy opening, I spotted the following, rubbing elbows in the lobby between the acts:

Alfred E. Smith, Ethel Barrymore, Roger Wolf Kahn, Beatrice Lillie, Milton Shubert, Howard Dietz, Groucho and Chico Marx, Florenz Ziegfeld, Lillian Gish, George White, Queenie Smith, Arthur Hopkins, Lewis Milestone, Otto Kahn, Owen Davis, Albertina Rasch, Osmond Perkins, Irving Berlin, Ray Goetz, Judith Anderson, Irene Bordoni, Gilbert Miller, Max Gordon, Ina Claire, Conde Nast, Morton Downey, Harnal Williams, Barbara Bennett, Harold Ross, Samuel Goldwyn, Mary Duncan and Mayor James J. Walker.

If sudden fire or flood or act of providence descended on that company—Ooof! What a fancy. That'll be enough, Mr. Aswell, for today.

SPEAKING OF COLD SNAPS—!

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—Third party talk is beginning to worry Democracy's leadership badly, with the country actually entered upon another presidential year.

Heretofore, an independent national candidacy has been a threat against Republican prospects. In 1912, with the late T. R. in the field, it was worse than a threat.

In 1924 progressive-ism may have drawn a little from the Democratic vote, but unquestionably it was a far greater drain upon the G. O. P., though not a fatal drain, as in 1912.

Next November, however, the Jeffersonian nominee will be the one endangered if a triangular contest develops—notwithstanding the fact that the interloper, if any, inevitably will be a progressive Republican, perhaps with a progressive Democratic running mate, like Senator Wheeler, on the ticket with the elder Senator LaFollette eight years ago.

Assuming that the Democrats name as their standard bearer a man of at least moderately progressive views (as the term "progressive" is employed in current political nomenclature), the probability of a heavy progressive Republican bolt from Mr. Hoover to his Democratic rival can hardly be disputed by any candid observer of conditions of today.

If dissatisfied with the selection of the Democrats, this element is largely disinclined to support Mr. Hoover anyway.

It regards Mr. Hoover's renomination as a foregone conclusion, but until lately, it has taken for granted the nomination of an acceptable Democrat, specifically, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

Now it is not so sure. That is, it is not so sure as it was that the Democrats will nominate Governor Roosevelt, due to indications of increasing opposition to him in his own party.

With Mr. Hoover and an unsatisfactory Democrat to choose between, the Republican progressives would be left with nowhere to go on election day.

Hence the growth of third party sentiment.

If Mr. Hoover must lose this disgruntled G. O. P. element whether or no, manifestly it will be better for him to have it flip to an independent than to the regular Democrat. The Democrat, with his natural vote, plus the bolting Republicans, might win, but there would not be much chance for an independent to do so.

There is more, however, to it than that. Let the Democrats put up a candidate who is unsatisfactory to the Republican progressives and there are many Democrats who will not be satisfied with him either. They likewise may bolt to the independent, if one is nominated.

It takes an almost unreasonably enthusiastic progressive to predict victory for a third ticket, even though Republican and Democratic progressives should combine, but it is conceivable of such a combination as settling the issue between the two major party candidates.

That was just what occurred in 1912, to the disadvantage of Republicans. It can easily happen this year, to the disadvantage of the Democrats, if the fight assumes a three-cornered aspect.

Don't Depend on PEOPLE
Pick Your Own Load
It's Easier

Once I depended on people. When I was in trouble I ran to them. I told them my worries. I asked them for advice. When they offered their help, I accepted it. I learned too much on people—and I learned, to my own heart's ache, that it did not work.

It never works. If you get into the habit of depending on other people, if you take too much from them, soon you begin to expect what they give as a RIGHT—and when they disappoint you, you are hurt and angry. . . . They weary of you. The burden of your troubles on their shoulders becomes too great. They have troubles enough of their own, without the added burden of yours, and you become an irritation to them.

That habit of mine cost me too much, and I gave it up. I learned, after more than one painful experience, that I could not depend on other people to carry my load. If they offered, if they insisted, I let them put a little of their strength into my struggle, but I did not expect much, I did not expect it for long—and I was grateful. And when they went away, on their own business, I thanked them and did not expect them back. They'd done enough.

And now—usually—I refuse. I take a chance when I accept help. I feel that I take no chances at all when I refuse.

Is this bitterness? Is this a cynical way of looking at people? I do not think so. . . . People are kind. People have generous impulses. People wish to help their fellows in distress. But human beings have definite limits.

I have a few friends who I believe would go far along the road with me, as I would go with them. But I would not ask too much of them. I would not expect too much. Why should I? Why should you—of YOUR friends? It is better to test your own strength, to learn for ourselves our own power to endure. Friends are good to have. Their sympathy and helpfulness give a man joy and make him feel that after all he is not entirely alone in the world, but finally must live by himself.

There are moments in the dark night when he is all alone and knows that he must hold fast to his own iron and follow his own gleam. And it is strengthening, then, to remember that though the entire world of men forsake him, he can upon his own self depend!

Democratic point of view? To bow to the progressives' wishes—and nominate Governor Roosevelt? At! It isn't that simple.

The qualities which make the New Yorker so popular among progressives are utterly lacking in appeal to another class of voters, whose good will the Jeffersonian managers are desperately anxious to win. The east fails to warm to him, despite his geography—and the east counts too much in the electoral college to be lightly disregarded.

It is a problem which is giving party strategists many sleepless nights.

Budgets For The Entire Family

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Spending Wisely

In spending wisely the money you have apportioned for food you should study the laws of nutrition and know what foods give the necessary elements for keeping the family in good health. This is always true, but especially so when funds are low and every cent must be spent so as to get the maximum of benefit from the food purchased.

The bureau of home economics of the U. S. department of agriculture says that there is economy in using milk, because it does more for the body than any other food and does it more cheaply. If you cannot afford whole fresh milk, buy evaporated milk (not sweetened condensed) which costs less and diluted with an equal amount of water, is the equivalent of fresh milk.

God liver oil should be included in the food budget. It protects the child from rickets by furnishing vitamins A and D. If children have three or four teaspoons of oil daily they can get along with skim milk, either fresh or dry.

Tomorrow we will discuss other foods which should be included daily in the food budget.

Necessity Of Humidity

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Three factors necessary for successful ventilation are that the air should be moving, and it should be conditioned as to temperature and humidity.

Most of us are accustomed to think of ventilation only in terms of temperature and adequate air space. The question of the comfort of a room cannot be decided on the basis of temperature alone. The amount of humidity determines whether a given temperature is comfortable or not.

The ideal temperature for comfort, health and efficiency is about 68 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit. Provided the air is not too dry. When the humidity of the air is too low this temperature will feel chilly. The principal reason our offices and homes are over-heated in the winter is because the humidity of the air is too low. With very dry air one will feel cold and uncomfortable unless the temperature is close to 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

When theaters first began to use cooled air in the summer time they usually maintained a temperature of about 70. But they also reduced the humidity of the air so much that with very dry air this temperature was too low for the comfort of their patrons. Now they reduce the humidity to a proper level and maintain a temperature of about 75.

It is curious that sanitary engineers of former times gave no consideration to humidifying the air. The heating systems that most of us have in our homes and places of business are constructed with no thought whatever of making the air moist or dry. The prevalent idea 25 years ago was that stale air was produced by a number of people breathing carbon-dioxide into a room. Now we know that expired air does not vitiate the atmosphere to any extent.

To show the difficulties of properly humidifying a home with ordinary heating apparatus the studies of E. P. Lyon are interesting. He found that to secure 50 percent relative humidity in his residence in the winter required the vaporization of half a gallon of water per hour per 7,000 cubic feet. In most houses the change of air in the room due to leakage through windows and doors causes the humidity to be reduced very rapidly. It requires 30 to 35 gallons of water to be evaporated every 24 hours in average homes to produce even a fairly good result.

Small dishes of water are entirely inadequate. Lyon uses 12 trays of 30 inches long, set one over the other, on a radiator. Of course, such a procedure is entirely impractical. The reason most of us do not follow Mr. Lyon's example is expressed in that grand motto of brave men and heroes: "My wife won't let me."

In summer in our climate we should do just the opposite—remove moisture from a too humid atmosphere.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
D. B.: "I have been affected for two years with rheumatism. Recently a doctor found my heart sick with rheumatic endocarditis. I don't feel any trouble in my heart. I am curious to know why I do not feel any consequence of such sickness."

Answer: Rheumatic heart disease does not produce any symptoms so long as the heart is in a condition of compensation. The heart may compensate for the disease for many, many years. I have known several patients over 70 with this trouble. The best advice I can give you is to remain under the care of your physician and allow him to prescribe treatment when he thinks it is necessary.

Afraid To Take Chance

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Why are people who get married dissatisfied? Lots of people who are married say to me, 'Take my advice and don't get married. You don't know how well off you are.'"

"Is this true? The idea of getting married used to thrill me, but now I am almost afraid to take a chance. Married life isn't as bad as people make it, is it?"

"I am going with a wonderful boy. He would like to get married soon, I know, but I am only 13 and think I am quite young—although I would never marry anyone but him. He is not the type that runs around. He is home loving. We have known each other for years and I know we will always get along. We like the same things, never quarrel. We are always together, so we might just as well be married. Don't you think we would be happy?"

"ELENE." There is no earthly reason why you should not be happy, my dear child. Married life, like single, is largely what you make it.

The surest proof of the fallacy of the statements of those who warn others not to marry is their own actions. How many divorced people stay single? You would think that once having been disappointed and having tasted the bitterness of disillusion, they would stay away from matrimony—as the burnt child shuns the fire—but do they? How often do you see notices in the papers concerning the marriage of certain parties, with the addition that both have been married once, twice, possibly more times? Odd, isn't it, if marriage is such an unhappy state?

And the men who refer to the missus as the "ball and chain" and deplore long and loudly the joys of their lost freedom, what do they do when Friend Wife passes on? Enjoy their freedom? Not much. The haste with which they again fetter themselves is often almost indecent—at least to the first wife's relative.

No, my dear, I do not think you are asking any great risk in marrying this young man whom you love and who is so companionable. You would be very, very foolish to turn him down. And these same people who are so often keen on advising you to stay single would later refer to you pityingly as a girl who might have married a fine young man and been so happy, except she was afraid to take a chance.

You'll undoubtedly meet some disappointments in marriage. It's no bed of roses—but then life itself isn't either. Both have their moments, however, and marriage is far more satisfying and developing than single blessedness—no matter what the wise-crackers may say.

"DEAR MISS LEE: I am a young woman 25 years old and married for three years. I am a good house-keeper and always have my hubby's clothes ready for him, but here is our trouble, it is his mother. We could be happy if it wasn't for her. My husband is out of work and we had just a few dollars saved for winter. Then she came along and asked him for some and he gave it to her. Whatever she says to him goes.

"If I would leave him would he get all the furniture? SALLY." Of course it was wrong of your husband to give his mother money he needed for his family unless she simply had to have it to live. He couldn't very well see her starve, could he?

If you left him you might agree to divide the furniture. I suppose it he paid for it and you left him without sufficient provocation, he could take it all.

Disapproves Treatment

By GLADYS GLAD

You may have noticed that the basic treatments advised by most beauty specialists for the acquisition and preservation of beauty are pretty much in agreement. And that is not surprising, for the advantages given by the majority of such specialists are generally based upon sound, scientific facts. But there is one treatment advocated by some beauty culturists for eliminating blackheads that I do not approve of at all. And that is the treatment which involves the use of hot towels on the face.

In the complete treatment to which I refer, the face must be first cleansed with cold cream. Then the hot towels are applied. When, as a result, the pores open, the blackheads must be squeezed out. And finally, the application of icy cold towels must be made to the face.

There are two things that I do not approve of in this treatment. My first objection is to the use of the hot and cold towels. Such violent changes in temperature can prove cleansing as excessive dryness of the skin may result, and broken capillaries may even appear. And my second objection is to the squeezing out of the blackheads. Blackheads should never be squeezed out, as the rupture of the pores by such a practice enlarges them beyond correction.

Absolute cleanliness is the first essential to freedom from blackheads. This means a daily bath and a face cleansing that is absolutely thorough. The temperature of the water that is used in the facial cleansing should never be extreme. For the facial muscles are very sensitive. And if you use steam and scald those elastic muscle fibers they will grow relaxed and flabby. The purpose of the hot towels is to open the pores. But a good cleansing cream will soften the skin and open the pores just as effectively.

For washing the face, the best course is to use water that is at body temperature. If you do not have a thermometer on your bathroom shelf, you can test the water with your elbow. If it is not hot enough to cause your elbow any discomfort, it will be just right for cleansing your face or your entire body.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

Ninety-nine out of every 100 Xenians are probably unfamiliar with hockey. That goes for this department too, although our fellows used to play it after a fashion when the creek froze over during the winter down on W. Market St.

Anyway, it must be an exciting sport, and so many funny things can happen—and frequently do—that couldn't happen anywhere except in hockey.

For instance this occurred recently: A fierce scrimmage—collisions—and then zingo—the stick was looted out of one of the player's hands. A hockey player without a stick is as useless, they tell us, as Babe Ruth going up to bat in a pinch without a bat. The referee then blew his whistle. The player was motioned to what is known as the penalty box.

Two minutes penalty to player—so and so—for engaging in play without his stick—came the official announcement.

Undimmed by the fact one of our friends (whom we repeatedly challenged to a game of golf last summer to no avail) thinks our little observation on oddities in golf is silly, here are a few more for his especial benefit!

The best one round of golf record in the United States is turned in by John Black, Oakland, Calif., pro, over the Claremont, C. C. 5,625 yard par 68 course.

Bobby Jones stands in the low-scoring class with a 63 shot at Eastlake, Atlanta, course 6,500 yard long, with a par of 72.

Alex Olson, Sioux City pro, can make the dubs stop talking when he mentions a drive of his that went 447 yards in August 1930. (We could mention a lot of ours that went farther than that, but nobody would believe it.)

Mrs. Robinson and Miss Chatterback halved a hole in one at Ramsgate, England, May 9, 1925. (What a head for statistics.)

Bill Lomis, pro at the South Shore C. C., Buffalo, scored two holes in one on the first nine holes of a match played at Hyde Park. The first was made on a 110 hole and the second on a 156-yard hole. (It is to wonder how long we can get by with this stuff.)

Badminton, a little known sport, which was introduced to Xenia Country Club members last summer and proved a popular innovation, has taken Boston by storm.

Already fourteen clubs there have been formed into a badminton league, there are others in prospect, officers of the league elected, and plans started for inter-club competition.

Local club members know all about it, but the uninitiated may consult a dictionary and they will discover that badminton is a game similar to lawn tennis, played with shuttlecocks on a court forty-four feet long and twenty feet wide. The net is five feet high. From one to four players on a side. The game is played in India with a wooden ball, on a court seventy-eight feet by thirty-six, with five players on a side.

It may be well to add that all requests for further pointers about the game should be addressed to some department other than this department, which knows them not.

WEST MILTON TO PLAYLANS

Steiner Furs of West Milton, one of the leading semi-pro basketball teams in this locality, has been booked to play the Lang Chevrolet Falcons at Central High gymnasium next Tuesday night. A good preliminary will precede the contest.

The West Milton squad includes two players affiliated with the former Dayton Kelly pro team, Crayton Roll and "Dutch" Ussat were connected at one time with this former National Professional League entrant.

Other stars associated with the Steiner Furs this season are Buschmeyer, of Wittenberg; Clellan, of Georgetown; Fambrough, of the University of Tennessee; Miller, of University of California, and Carl Brumbaugh, of the University of Florida, also a former member of the Chicago "Bears."

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE TO PLAY WILBERFORCE U. SATURDAY

Sidney Indicted As Accessory Before And After Fact In Death Of Twenty-Game String; Mourners Ponder Over 24 To 11 Score

By PHIL FRAME

XENIA CENTRAL'S victory march in the Miami Valley League is ended. Ended by Sidney High which, by virtue of a crushing 24 to 11 victory, snapped Central's string of twenty consecutive league triumphs and plastered on the Buccaneer quintet the first defeat the four-time league champions have known since the circuit was formed in 1927.

The end came peacefully Friday evening at Sidney. The demise, while not entirely unexpected nevertheless came as a profound shock, many of the immediate friends of the deceased were present at the last.

While a diversity of opinion existed among those called in to through its teething period and sub-treat the patient, a majority seemed to feel that the demise of the victory string was due to a complication of ailments, including infirmities of age.

Having been advised that the end was near, hundreds of persons were on hand at the Sidney gym for the final consultation. After Sidney assumed a 7 to 3 lead at the quarter post and a 10 to 5 advantage at halftime, the main question was whether a stimulant could be administered or whether nature should be allowed to take its appointed course, unhindered. On a roll call a majority voted to let it die.

Sidney, animated by high humanitarian motives which forbade holding out hope for the doomed patient, early administered an anesthetic from which the Bucs failed to rally. They never came out from under the ether of the sturdy Sidney offense and closely-woven defense.

Xenia's unsullied league record was born four years ago. It was a healthy infant from the first, with strong pulse and regular respiration, and took nourishment regular.

MIAMISBURG, TROY WIN GAMES FRIDAY

With both teams inaugurating their 1932 Miami Valley League campaigns, Miamisburg scored a victory over Greenville's quintet of six-footers over Friday night on the Burger floor. Greenville was ahead, 17 to 14, at the end of the third period, but in the final quarter the visiting team went scoreless and the Burgers tallied five points on baskets by Weaver and Paramore and a foul by Weaver. Miamisburg won the reserve game, 19 to 6.

Meeting in a non-league game, Troy High beat Piqua 21 to 13 on the Troy floor. Troy reserves defeated Piqua reserves, 12 to 8 in the preliminary. Lineup of Miamisburg-Greenville game:

NOONDAY MEETINGS GROW IN INTEREST

The noon day gospel meetings held daily during the week in the Bijou Theater under the auspices of the Laymen's Evangelistic League have caused considerable interest and comment according to an announcement Saturday by the Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, evangelist, who has taken part in the meetings. School children, working men, scores of church members together with business and professional and churchmen have attended the meetings daily.

The program of speakers for next week as tentatively arranged by the Laymen's group include Dr. B. McClellan, Monday; the Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, Tuesday and Wednesday; The Rev. E. A. Rager, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, will be in charge of the music. The meetings begin promptly at 12 o'clock and continue for an hour. It is not necessary to remain during the entire period it is pointed out.

ASK BABY REPORTS

PARENTS of babies born in Xenia city early in the new year are urged to inform the Gazette so that winners of prizes for the first three babies born in 1932 may be determined.

Beatrice Anne Peterson, born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peterson, Zoar neighborhood, south of Xenia, was the first baby of 1932 born in Greene County, outside of Xenia. City physicians, however, do not report births until the end of the month, and it has been impossible to determine the winners of prizes offered for 1932 Xenia city babies only.

Since there are prizes available for the first three babies born in Xenia, parents are asked to furnish the Gazette with a record of time of birth in order to determine the winners before the end of the month.

Home basketball quintet lost to Bath Twp. High's fast and rangy team, 32 to 25, on Friday night. In preliminary games, the Home girls were beaten by Bath's sextet, 44 to 14, but the cadet junior team triumphed over Bath juniors, 19 to 10. PASTOR DESCRIBES HOW DEVIL'S WORK ATTACKS RELIGION

"Some people have just enough religion to enjoy the things that other people enjoy but not enough to really enjoy religion itself," said the Rev. C. A. Hutchison, Cedarville, when he opened his sermon on "The Mark of the Beast" at revival services at Trinity M. E. Church Friday evening. The Rev. Mr. Hutchison based his thoughts on Rev. 13: 16-17, "And he that is the beast (meaning the devil) causeth the mark."

The Rev. Mr. Hutchison showed that Revelation is written to apply to the problems of that day but it applies to us as well as the problems still remain. "One of the devil's ultimatums today is that if you try to carry Christ into business you will not be a success. In all types of business you will find this mark of the beast. The natural man needs the mark of Christ, the brand of Christ to be a Christian business man," the Rev. Mr. Hutchison said.

The speaker further pointed out how the mark of the beast is prevalent in all walks of life and all professions but he said: "The essential revival at Trinity Church is that we shall be marked with the seal of the Lord Jesus Christ. When we bring people into the church they should be different. Are they? We are living as a church to be Dives here and to be Lazarus hereafter."

Preceding the sermon the Rev. E. A. Rager, in a short talk, thanked the organist, pianist and orchestra members for assisting in the services. The service will continue throughout next week every evening at 7:30 o'clock, with the exception of Saturday.

CEDARVILLE, ROSS AND BRYAN GIRLS' TEAMS ALSO VICTORS

Jamestown Defeated In Overtime; Cedarville Drops Its First Game; Ross Wins Despite Handicap

Basketball games within Greene County court circles Friday night resulted in triumphs for Jefferson Twp., Ross Twp. and Bryan High of Yellow Springs boys' teams, and victories for Cedarville, Ross Twp. and Bryan High girls' teams.

Bryan High boys required an overtime period to beat Jamestown, 21 to 15, while the Yellow Springs girls won, 23 to 11. Ross Twp. teams won a double-header from Spring Valley, the boys winning, 33 to 25, and the girls by a score of 21 to 16. Jefferson Twp. boys scored an upset 31 to 21 triumph over Cedarville, but the school's feminine team lost to Cedarville, 28 to 20.

Bellbrook teams divided a double-header at Centerville, the boys winning, 35 to 15. The O. S. and S. O. Home teams lost two games to Bath Twp. High. Bath boys won, 32 to 25, and the girls triumphed, 44 to 14.

Cedarville High dropped from the select list of unbeaten teams in Greene County basketball circles when it lost to Jefferson Twp. High, 31 to 21 at Bowersville Friday night. bravery in action, once receiving the Japanese order of the rising sun.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The arrest of Mrs. Granville Fortescue and her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, in Honolulu, in connection with the murder of Joe Kahanahawai, a native, created a sensation in capital society today.

All are well known here. Mrs. Fortescue was the daughter of the late Charles J. Bell, well known Washington banker, president of the American Security and Trust Co., and cousin of the late Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone.

Mrs. Massie, her daughter, is the former Thalia Fortescue, who made her debut here and in New York only a few years ago. She was married to Lieut. Massie, whose home is in Winchester, Ky., at her grandparents' home at Bayshore, 1414 N. St. in 1927 in a brilliant wedding widely attended by society of the eastern seaboard.

Upon receipt of word some time ago that her daughter had been attacked by a native, Mrs. Fortescue went at once to Honolulu and since remained there. She had been expected shortly to return.

Attacks by natives and half-castes on white women have been an increasing source of worry to naval officers for some time. Only a few days ago Secretary of the Navy Adams said it might be necessary to cancel the winter maneuvers of the Pacific fleet off Honolulu because the presence of more American sailors in port might lead to serious consequences.

Kay Kyser And Orchestra Will Be Heard Over WLW

By MILDRED MASON

KAY KYSER—said by those who seem to know to be the only radio orchestra leader in the world who disparts a valet, a chauffeur, a private secretary and a chaperone—with his orchestra will be heard over station WLW, Cincinnati, for an undetermined engagement. The orchestra opened its engagement there Friday.

Kyser, a tall, lanky, ash blond, was born at Rocky Mount, N. C., in 1905. He had planned to study law but found that music was more to his liking and after graduating from the University of North Carolina organized his own band. His band features the singing of two soloists, a trio, a quartet, an octet and even a glee club—which, according to Kay should be enough singing for anyone.

As for his help, enumerated in a foregoing paragraph, it might be well to add that Kyser's Negro chauffeur fills all of the positions.

"Scandal" Girls on Air.

Three hundred prominent Detroit executives attending the New York auto show will be guests of the National Broadcasting Co. at a program to be broadcast Sunday at 8:15 p. m. over a coast-to-coast network through WLW, Cincinnati.

As a special feature of the program, the ten most beautiful girls of George White's "Scandals" will appear in costume, singing the hit of the show, "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries."

"Singing Lady" Broadcasts.

"The Singing Lady," whose popularity has become almost traditional over one station in the midwest, will be heard over an NBC network through WLW, Cincinnati, starting Monday at 5:30 p. m. She will entertain children during the twilight hour with her nursery jingles, songs and stories.

Jerome Kern Is Guest.

Jerome Kern will make one of his rare microphone appearances in the Parade of States program dedicated to New York to be broadcast over an NBC network through WLW, Cincinnati, Monday at 9:30 p. m. Kern will conduct the orchestra in the playing of "Kerniana," a collection of his best known numbers. Other numbers typical of New York state will be featured.

New Feature Planned.

How the Canadian Royal Mounted Police always "get their man" will be dramatically told in a new program entitled, "With Canada's Mounted" which makes its debut over an NBC network Monday night. T. Morris Longstreth, official chronicler of the Canadian Royal Mounted Police, is preparing the material for the sketches. He has spent years delving into the archives of the police organization and has written two books, "The Son of the Mounted Police" and "The Silent Force." The initial program will tell how a notorious forger was run to earth, the program to be entitled, "The Case of Ernest Caswell." This feature will be heard through WLW at 10 o'clock.

Lipstick Girl A Romance Little Beauty

EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "DAD'S GIRL," "JORETTA" and "LOVE PREFERRED"

READ THIS FIRST:

Marcia Meyer who has worked in the cosmetic department of the largest store in Mitchellfield, does her work so well that she is given an opportunity to travel all over the country to demonstrate beauty products for a New York company. She leaves Ted Stanton in Mitchellfield, who has loved her for always, but she is seeking romance and wants to see the world.

In Chicago, the district manager, Ed Haley, takes her to dinner and they become better acquainted. In the meantime, an airplane made a forced landing near Mitchellfield, and the pilot meets Vivian Macale's sister, to whom he is attracted at once. Haley is a pleasant, sportsman type of fellow whom Marcia likes very much but is not particularly interested. A letter from Ted explains that the strange aviator has engaged him as a mechanic on his regular route from St. Louis to Chicago. Ted goes to Springfield to work on the plane while Eugene visits Vivian. Marcia attends a famous club with Haley. Vivian falls in love with Eugene, knowing almost nothing about himself or his business. Marcia becomes established in her work and begins to observe that the world and its people are pretty much the same everywhere, but she has only started on her quest for romance, taking beauty and its hopes to other women as she goes. On the train to Detroit, she meets Turner Gilmore, a secret service official who is much attracted to her. He is going to the same city on business and Marcia will be stationed there for two weeks.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 18

THE WARM, dull afternoon on the train developed into pleasant hours that passed swiftly for Marcia. When Turner Gilmore returned from the smoker, he came directly to her section and settled himself in the seat facing her, as in they had been long acquainted. Marcia found herself liking him from the first, she talked about her work, her family and her ambitions, prompted by his interested questions.

"And have you found the world quite as enchanting as you expected?" he smiled.

Veteran Player Of Stage, Makes Debut At Ripe Age

When Universal decided to make a talking picture of Howard McKent Barnes' famous play, "Mother's Millions," it chose May Robson, veteran star of the stage version for the leading role and then cloaked the piece with a fresh group of picture players for the supporting cast.

May Robson has been trooping forty-seven seasons, was under Charles Froham many years of that time and has been the perennial star of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" every time that worthy opus is revived. "Mother's Millions" was a success for her on the stage and is her first picture vehicle.

Along with this champion, Universal cast James Hall, Lawrence Gray, Frances Dade, Edmund

INJUNCTION AGAINST SCHOOL APPEALED TO HIGHER COURT

Appeal from a ruling of Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy, enjoining the W. H. Howard Construction Co., Columbus contractor, from resuming work on the partly completed $180,000 centralized school building in Beaver Creek Twp. in a matter that violates the original contract, has been filed with the second district court of appeals.

This announcement was made Friday by Attorney Marcus Shoup, this city, member of defense counsel, who said the case will probably be heard by the appellate court while it is in session at Columbus during the next three months. Otherwise an additional delay would result since the appeals court is not scheduled to convene here for its semi-annual session until sometime in April.

Meanwhile, construction of the school building has been suspended entirely by the contractor, who halted work on the project December 12.

GREENE COUNTY FARMER EARNED $455 ABOVE LIVING LAST YEAR

Farm account records which were summarized at the annual summary school Thursday show that the average net farm income of Greene County farmers who kept records was $455 during the past year.

According to County Agent E. A. Drake the average receipts exceeded the expenditures by $1204, while the farm inventory was $749 less at the end of the year than at the beginning. The decrease in inventory was due to lower prices of stocks on hand. The average size of the farm was 147 acres with an average of ninety-nine crop acres. This represented sixty-two crop acres per man and 25.4 crop acres per horse.

The lower prices of farm products were partially offset by high crop yields. The average crop yields the past year compared with the preceding year as follows: Corn, fifty-seven bushels per acre in 1931 as compared with thirty-seven in 1930; oats thirty-two bushels as against thirty-one bushels; wheat, thirty-four bushels as compared with twenty-one bushels; hay, 1.8 tons per acre as compared to 1.4 tons in 1930.

The efficiency of livestock averages were lower in 1931 due to lower prices received for the products. The return of a dollar's worth of feed fed last year averaged $1.28 as compared to $1.49 the preceding year. Dairy receipts per cow were $85 as compared with $106 the previous year and egg sales per hen were $1.45 against $2.22 in 1930.

In addition to the net income on these farms, each farmer and his family had a certain amount of living off the farm. Milk, cream, butter, eggs, chickens, pork, garden stuff and house rent are among the items of living secured from these farms. An account of the value of this living off the farm was not included in these records. However several of them are keeping home account records which will be summarized Tuesday January 12.

Nolen Putnam, Xenia, who has been connected with the Jamestown Monument Co., Jamestown as salesman for the last year, has purchased the half interest of County Auditor J. J. Curlett in that concern, it was revealed Saturday.

Mr. Putnam, who has interested himself in the management of the business during his connection with the company, will be associated with the surviving partner, Thomas Taylor, in the operation of the concern, which does a general business in monuments and grave markers.

The business was established about thirty-three years ago and was operated under several different ownerships until nine years ago and was operated under several different ownerships until nine years ago when it was purchased by Mr. Curlett and Mr. Taylor. The latter was in active charge of the business while his associate was occupied by his position as a county official.

Mr. Putnam expects to direct the business affairs of the company and also continue to act as salesman.

What's New in the New Chevrolet Six

When you read what's new in the new Chevrolet Six, you, too, will agree it's the Great American Value for 1932.
It is the only low-priced car to offer both Syncro-Mesh and Free Wheeling in combination. It has engine and chassis improvements that raise performance to new heights of power, speed and smoothness. It provides the finest Fisher bodies Chevrolet has ever introduced. And it maintains the same factors of dependability and economy that have won the approval of millions of Chevrolet owners.

All that has proved to be sound and dependable in the past, plus all the new advancements given below—at one of the lowest prices in the market! That's why the new Chevrolet Six is the Great American Value for 1932!

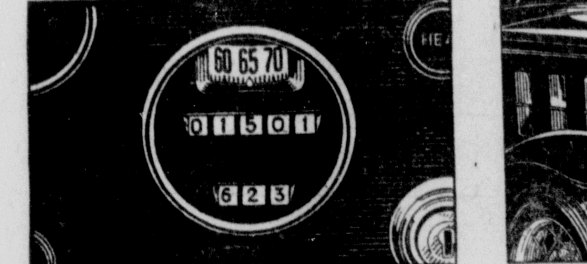

Silent Syncro-Mesh Transmission
This well-known feature of high-priced cars is the finest type of transmission ever developed. In the new Chevrolet Six, it brings a new type of handling ease and car control to the low-price field. Syncro-Mesh permits you to shift gears with marvelous quickness, quietness and ease. As a safety factor, it is especially valuable. For it enables you to shift rapidly from high back into second, any time you want to use the engine as a brake.

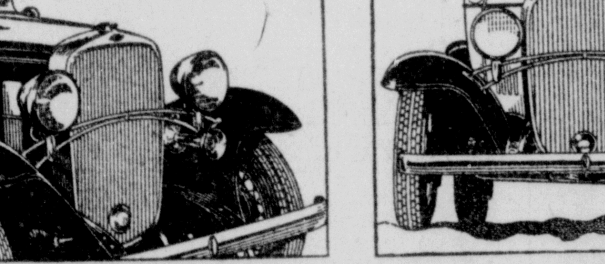

A Smoother, Improved Six-Cylinder Engine
New experiences await you in the Chevrolet Six—new thrills in power, pick-up, smoothness and speed. For Chevrolet has introduced many new engine-features that increase power 20 per cent to 60 horsepower, and make Chevrolet's built-in six-cylinder smoothness even smoother. These features include down-draft carburetion, a new cylinder head, new manifolding, a counter-balanced crankshaft and rubber engine mountings.

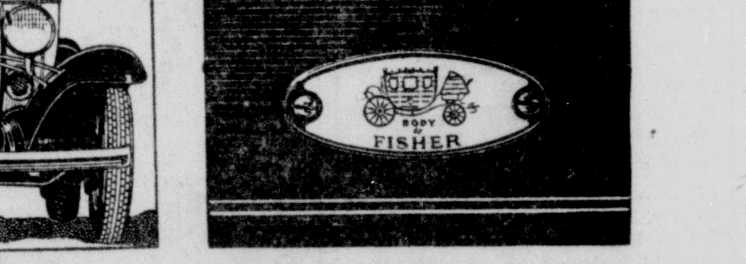

Simplified Free Wheeling
Chevrolet's Free Wheeling mechanism is a new and advanced type that is extremely simple in construction. You may take advantage of its thrills whenever you want to, by simply pressing a button on the dash. Thereafter, and until you pull the button out again you are "in" Free Wheeling. You coast along on momentum every time your foot is off the accelerator. And you can shift with magical simplicity and ease.

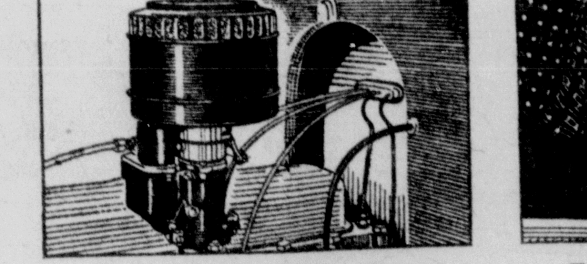

65 to 70 Miles an Hour with Faster Acceleration
Vital new features introduced into Chevrolet's six-cylinder engine enable it to develop 65 to 70 miles an hour with astonishing ease, stability and smoothness. And stop-watch tests show an acceleration from 0 to 35 miles in 6.7 seconds.

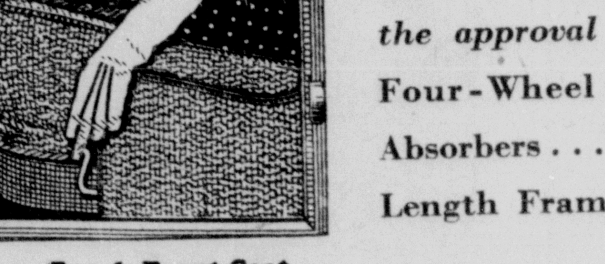

Distinctive New Front-End Appearance
The new chromium-plated elliptical radiator, built-in radiator grille, double tie-bar, trumpet-type horn, and bullet-type headlamps form a front-end ensemble of arresting beauty, enhanced by new rectangular, adjustable hood-ports.

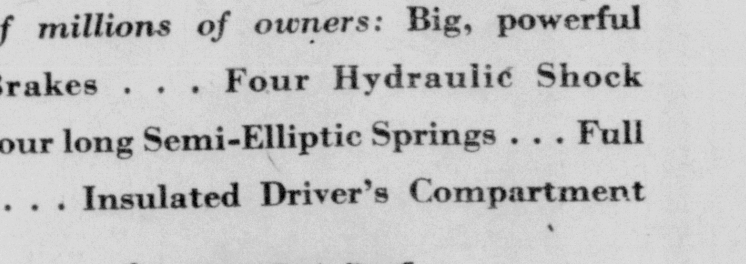

Stabilized Front-End Mounting
An ingenious method of mounting front fenders, lamps, double tie-bar and radiator securely to the frame—a method exclusive to Chevrolet—stabilizes the whole front-end assembly and insures steadiness when driving over rough roads.

Down-Draft Carburetion
The down-draft carburetor is a big factor in Chevrolet's greater power, speed and pick-up. An intake silencer combined with it assures greater quietness. A heat control device, operated from the dash, warms up the engine quickly and provides more efficient operation in cold weather.

Finger-Touch Front Seat
One of the most interesting conveniences in the new Fisher bodies is the new type of adjustable front seat. A touch of the finger on a lever at the left of the cushions, and you can move the seat to any desired position. This feature is exclusive to Chevrolet in the lowest-price field.

Smart New Fisher Bodies
Chevrolet's new Fisher bodies are the smartest bodies ever to appear in the low-price field. Moreover, Fisher craftsmen have added many new elements of strength, quietness and solidity to the wood-and-steel construction. Greater vision is provided for all occupants.

And the following Chevrolet features that have won the approval of millions of owners: Big, powerful Four-Wheel Brakes . . . Four Hydraulic Shock Absorbers . . . Four long Semi-Elliptic Springs . . . Full Length Frame . . . Insulated Driver's Compartment

What's New in the New Chevrolet Six

When you read what's new in the new Chevrolet Six, you, too, will agree it's the Great American Value for 1932.

It is the only low-priced car to offer both Synchro-Mesh and Free Wheeling in combination. It has engine and chassis improvements that raise performance to new heights of power, speed and smoothness. It provides the finest Fisher bodies Chevrolet has ever introduced. And it maintains the same factors of dependability and economy that have won the approval of millions of Chevrolet owners.

All that has proved to be sound and dependable in the past, plus all the new advancements given below—at one of the lowest prices in the market! That's why the new Chevrolet Six is the Great American Value for 1932!

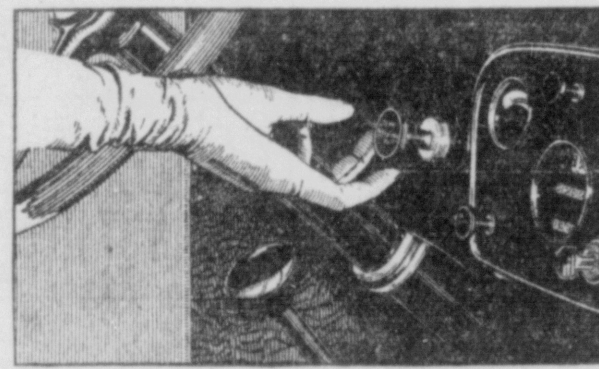

Silent Synchro-Mesh Transmission

This well-known feature of high-priced cars is the finest type of transmission ever developed. In the new Chevrolet Six, it brings a new type of handling ease and control to the low-price field. Synchro-Mesh permits you to shift gears with marvelous quickness, quietness and ease. As a safety factor, it is especially valuable. For it enables you to shift rapidly from high back into second, any time you want to use the engine as a brake.

A Smoother, Improved Six-Cylinder Engine

New experiences await you in the Chevrolet Six—new thrills in power, pick-up, smoothness and speed. For Chevrolet has introduced many new engine-features that increase power 20 per cent to 60 horsepower, and make Chevrolet's built-in six-cylinder smoothness even smoother. These features include down-draft carburetor, a new cylinder head, new manifolding, a counter-balanced crankshaft and rubber engine mountings.

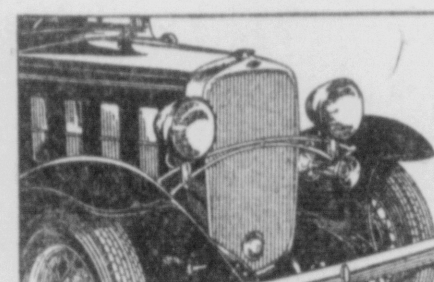

Simplified Free Wheeling

Chevrolet's Free Wheeling mechanism is a new and advanced type that is extremely simple in construction. You may take advantage of its thrills whenever you want to, by simply pressing a button on the dash. Thereafter, and until you pull the button out again you are "in" Free Wheeling. You coast along on momentum every time your foot is off the accelerator. And you can shift with magical simplicity and ease.

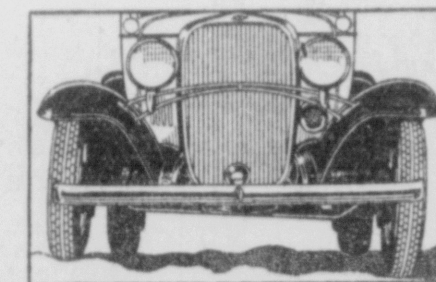

65 to 70 Miles an Hour with Faster Acceleration

Vital new features introduced into Chevrolet's six-cylinder engine enable it to develop 65 to 70 miles an hour with astonishing ease, stability and smoothness. And stop-watch tests show an acceleration from 0 to 35 miles in 6.7 seconds.

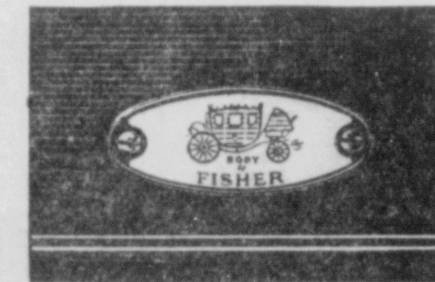

Distinctive New Front-End Appearance

The new chromium-plated elliptical radiator, built-in radiator grille, double tie-bar, trumpet-type horn, and bullet-type headlamps form a front-end ensemble of arresting beauty, enhanced by new rectangular, adjustable hood-ports.

Stabilized Front-End Mounting

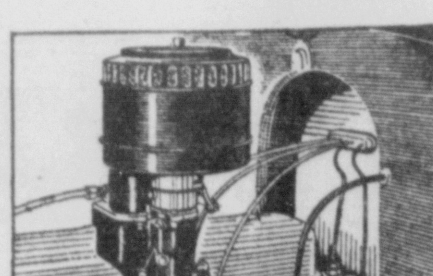

An ingenious method of mounting front fenders, lamps, double tie-bar and radiator securely to the frame—a method exclusive to Chevrolet—stabilizes the whole front-end assembly and insures steadiness when driving over rough roads.

Smart New Fisher Bodies

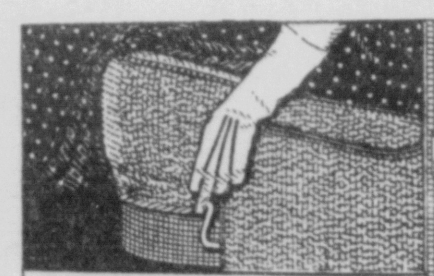

Chevrolet's new Fisher bodies are the smartest bodies ever to appear in the low-price field. Moreover, Fisher craftsmen have added many new elements of strength, quietness and solidity to the wood-and-steel construction. Greater vision is provided for all occupants.

And the following Chevrolet features that have won the approval of millions of owners: Big, powerful Four-Wheel Brakes . . . Four Hydraulic Shock Absorbers . . . Four long Semi-Elliptic Springs . . . Full Length Frame . . . Insulated Driver's Compartment

Down-Draft Carburetion

The down-draft carburetor is a big factor in Chevrolet's greater power, speed and pick-up. An intake silencer combined with it assures greater quietness. A heat control device, operated from the dash, warms up the engine quickly and provides more efficient operation in cold weather.

Finger-Touch Front Seat

One of the most interesting conveniences in the new Fisher bodies is the new type of adjustable front seat. A touch of the finger on a lever at the left of the cushions, and you can move the seat to any desired position. This feature is exclusive to Chevrolet in the lowest-price field.
